EXCLUSIVE

BACON STEVENS

INTERVIEW!

by JOHN POTATOPEEL – D.J.

I met 'Bakey' in his luxury sty in his Hammersmith apartment. My first question was: How did you get started in the music business?

B. I started at an early age. I was the runt of the litter and I found it hard to stick up for myself. That was when I took up singing – everyone ran away from me as soon as I opened my mouth.

J. Were you in any bands before your solo success?

B. Oh, yes. I was in a reggae band called 'U.B. Porky', but they kicked me out for hogging the stage. Then I was in a punk band called 'Eric Dandruff and the Violent Snots', but I pogoed too hard one night and the stage collapsed. That kind of squashed Eric's hopes of success.

J. Weren't you nearly a member of 'Ham!' with George Michael and Andrew Pigley?

B. Yes, I joined them for a time but left because of musical differences –

I was musical and they were different!

Heh, Heh! But seriously, the main reason I left was because they were too greedy.

J. Greedy?

B. Yes, all they ever thought about was making a lot of bacon.

J. Finally, have you any comments on the record given away with this issue of 'Oink'?

B. I think it's great! I'd give my right trotter to be able to sing like that.
